At a Meeting of the Council of the Surtees Society, held in the Castle of Durham, on Tuesday, December 3rd, 1867, Mr. Chevallier in the chair, it was Ordered "That the Register of the Corpus Christi Guild at York should be prepared for the Society by Mr. Skaife."

THE PREFACE.

The religious guild of Corpus Christi was established at York in the year 1408 by certain "chaplains and other worthy parsons, both secular and regular," and dedicated "to the praise and honour of the most sacred body of Our Lord Jesus Christ." The principal object of its founders[a] appears to have been to promote the decorous observance of the religious festival of Corpus Christi, and to provide for the due performance of the ceremonies of the day. As a full and very interesting account of the celebration of this festival in York has already been given[b] by Mr. Davies, it is unnecessary for me here to do more than quote his observation that "whilst under the management of the guild, it was conducted with all the pomp and splendour which the church was then capable of imparting to the solemnities and ceremonies of her ordinances."[c]

The Register of the guild, which forms the text of the greater portion of the volume now presented to the members of the Surtees Society, commences with a sermon or discourse upon the text "This is my body," in which the system or institution of confraternity is recommended, and the doctrine contained in the text is proved from various passages in the

[a] It is remarkable that the names of the founders have not been preserved, as it is stated in the Register that they are "infra specialiter intitulantur." I am unable to account for this omission, or for the absence from the list of admissions during the first decade of the guild's existence of the names of upwards of one hundred persons whose deaths are recorded in the Obituary.

Scriptures and the works of the Fathers. The discourse concludes by setting forth the seven rules of charity which guided the founders in drawing up their ordinances.[d] The latter are also seven in number, and the substance of them is as follows:—

I.—On Corpus Christi day[e] all the chaplains, in surplices, are to go in procession, and two, at least, of the masters, carrying white wands, to order the procession, to the glory of God and of the city of York.

II.—Six chaplains, brethren of the fraternity, to be chosen yearly as keepers on the Sunday within the Octave of the festival of Corpus Christi; whoever refuses to serve, to pay a fine of 40d. The six chaplains, thus elected, to have the rule of the whole fraternity.

III.—All candidates for admission to the guild to be received by the six masters, or keepers. No oath to be required of them; but they shall charge their consciences to contribute, according to their means, to the support of the guild.

IV.—The chaplains, who are members, to daily remember their brethren, living or dead, in their Masses, and to be present at their funerals.

V.—The lay members of the fraternity to say yearly for the souls of their departed brethren the Psalter of the Virgin; but they are not to take any share in the councils or government of the guild. No lay person to be admitted unless of good character.

VI.—All the brethren and sisters to be present at the Mass on the Sunday within the Octave of the festival, and to contribute 2d. each towards the support of the guild. Those who refuse to pay, or absent themselves without reasonable excuse, to be removed from the fraternity. On the same day there shall be an Obit with note for all deceased members, and Mass on the following Monday. Other provisions for the observance of these obits, and for the payment of those who officiate thereat.

[d] An abstract of these ordinances has been printed by the late Mr. Toulmin Smith in the work on "English Gilds" which he edited for the Early English Text Society.

[e] In 1426, the city council issued an ordinance, "that from thenceforth the solemn play of Corpus Christi should be played every year on Wednesday, the vigil of the feast, and that the procession should be always solemnly made on the day of the festival itself." Subsequent minutes shew that the citizens nevertheless persisted in exhibiting their pageants on the day of the festival, and that the procession was held on the morrow, until the dissolution of the guild. (Extracts from York Records, by R. Davies, F.S.A.).

VII.—In the procession on Corpus Christi day ten large lights to be borne before the sacrament;—six, only, before the body of a deceased member. Each member to pay 2d. yearly to keep up these lights. All gifts and legacies to be entrusted to the masters, to be used by them for the benefit of the guild. No boys or strangers to be admitted to the meetings of the guild, or to receive alms. The masters of the past year to assist, to the best of their power, the masters who succeed them; and especially to accompany them through the city, and point out the dwellings of the brethren, when they collect the annual subsidy. Each person thus assisting to receive 2d., or his dinner, for (it is added) "the labourer is worthy of his hire, or his food." All useless expense to be avoided, and care to be taken of the property of the guild.

No change appears to have been made in these ordinances until after the incorporation of the guild in 1458. On the 6th of November in that year the King issued letters patent, addressed to the archbishop of York, George Neville, bishop elect of Exeter, Richard Andrew, dean of York, William Murton, John Marshall, Richard Tune, and John Pagnam, clerks, William Holbeck, the lord mayor, Richard Warter and John Thrisk, merchants, authorizing them to establish a guild, to the praise and honour of the most sacred body of Our Lord Jesus Christ, to consist of a master and six keepers, and of such persons, of both sexes, as were desirous, from feelings of devotion, of joining the fraternity. The members to pray for the good estate of the catholic faith, and especially for the health of the king, his consort, his progenitor Edward, and for their souls after death. To elect annually, in the Octave of the feast of Corpus Christi, from amongst themselves, a priest as master, and six chaplains as keepers, who are to govern the guild for the year next following. The said master, keepers, brethren and sisters to be a body corporate, and to have a common seal. They may acquire land, houses, rents, and other possessions; and the said master and keepers and their successors may plead and be impleaded by the name of the master and keepers of the guild of Corpus Christi in the city of York. If the master die during his year of office, the keepers, for the time being, to elect, on the Sunday next after his decease, another priest to take his place.

Acting under the authority of these letters patent, the archbishop of York, and the other persons named therein, appointed, in 1459, William Outhwayte to be master, and William Marshall, Thomas Wiles, Robert Wistowe, John Lece, Roger Marton and Gilbert Saylesbery to be keepers, of the guild. Some years afterwards the then master and keepers drew up a new set of ordinances, which were finally approved by the archbishop in June, 1477. The following is an abstract of them:—

The master and six keepers to be elected yearly, in the Octave of Corpus Christi, in the hall of the hospital of the Holy Trinity, in Fossgate, if possible; otherwise in some convenient place within the city. Electors, the master, keepers, their twelve chaplains, and all the parochial clergy in York who are members. Three eligible persons to be selected, who are to be voted for, and he who receives the greater number of votes to be elected. A fine of 10s. to be inflicted on him who refuses to serve, unless excused by the fraternity.

Immediately after the master is elected, each of the six keepers to nominate his successor for the ensuing year. He who refuses to serve to pay a fine of 3s. 4d., unless exonerated by the master and keepers.

The keepers to be willing and ready to attend the bidding of the master, and to be helpful to him in all matters concerning the business of the guild. He who is negligent in this respect to be fined 2d., unless excused by the master.

The master, invested with a silken cope, to walk in the procession on Corpus Christi day, as president, and to be supported on either side by one of his predecessors in the office, selected by himself.

In the procession two of the senior keepers, having white wands in their hands, to attend diligently upon the shrine; the other four, also holding white wands, to regulate the procession. All the keepers to wear stoles.

Every parochial clergyman, who is a member, to join in the procession in his surplice, the best singers singing as they go. Each to be fined 6d. if absent without leave.

Two proper chaplains, members of the guild, to be appointed to sing litanies and other appropriate chants in every general procession. He who refuses to attend to pay a fine of 2d., unless excused by the master.

The master and six keepers to be present, if possible, at the funeral of every priest, who is a member, and shall die in York or its suburbs.

When any indigent priest, who is a member, dies within the city or its suburbs, the master and keepers are to cause him to be decently buried at the cost of the guild.

The master and keepers shall arrange for the keeping of the anniversary for the souls of deceased members, in some place within the city, in the evening of the Saturday next after Corpus Christi day. On the following Sunday the Mass of Corpus Christi shall be celebrated in the same place; the master, keepers, seven chaplains who have been his predecessors, and the regular chaplains and clerk of the church to assist, all wearing surplices. Each chaplain to offer for the souls of the dead on the same Sunday, or the Monday after, under pain of 1d., unless excused by the master.

The Missa mortuorum to be sung on the Monday within the Octave of Corpus Christi, the same persons being present.

Each chaplain there to be paid 2d., and the clerk 4d. for ringing the bells on the previous Saturday night.

The chaplains present at the said exequies to have a refection of bread, cheese and ale, as they have been accustomed to have in former times, at the expense of the guild.

The bellman to go round the city on the Saturday aforesaid, announcing the anniversary and the indulgences granted to the guild.

The master to have the appointment, and to fix the stipend, of the chaplain general, who has to pray for the dead and living members.

The master and keepers to be diligent in levying and collecting the subsidy, and to render an account before St. Andrew's day in the year next after their election. A weekly fine of 6s. 8d. to be imposed on the master, and one of 3s. 4d. on each of the keepers, until the account is presented.

The newly elected master and keepers to receive the shrine from their predecessors within thirty days after their election, and the common seal, jewels, vestments, money, and other things belonging to the guild, before the feast of St. Andrew next following.

The new master and keepers to provide refreshments at the auditing of the accounts of their predecessors.

If the master neglects, or is unable, to levy any fines which may be imposed, as above described, then the official of the Court of York shall have power to enforce payment thereof by excommunication, and to apply the same to the benefit of the guild.

Once in four years, the master and keepers shall appoint four general obits, to be kept in four conventual churches of the order of Friars Mendicants, for the souls of the dead; the Exequiæ to be celebrated on the Saturday evening, and the Mass of Requiem on the morrow; each order to receive 2s. in addition to the oblations of the members of the guild. The general obit to be announced by the city bellman on the day on which it is proposed to be held.

The master and one of the six keepers to have the custody of two of the six keys of the chest containing the stores, common seal, and evidences of the guild. Each of the other four keys to be kept by a chaplain, selected by the master and his twelve chaplains, or the majority of them.

The number of twelve chaplains, who assist the master and keepers, to be kept up. When there is a vacancy, the master, keepers and surviving chaplains to fill it up within a month.

If any doubt arise as to the true interpretation of these statutes, the master, keepers and twelve chaplains shall have power to decide, and also to amend the same according to their discretions.

In 1478, the year after the above ordinances received the approval of the archbishop, the master, wardens and brethren of the ancient hospital of St. Thomas of Canterbury, without Micklegate Bar, transferred their house and possessions to the master and brethren of the guild of Corpus Christi. From that time the hospital and guild were united, and ruled by the same master and keepers; a slight change being made in the constitution of the governing body by the addition of "tweyne sadde and discrete personnes temporell," brethren of the guild, who were to be chosen annually by the master and keepers on the day of their election.

Of the early history of the hospital of St. Thomas but little is known. It was founded, before the close of the fourteenth century, for the reception and support of the poor of each sex, and principally for the relief, both day and night, of poor or infirm pilgrims passing through the city. The number of brethren and sisters resident in the hospital at the time of its union with the guild is not stated; but the deed of transfer confirms to them the use of their "beddes and beddrowmez, thaire owen propre liffes duryng, without anny maner of expulsion," and obliges the master and brethren of the guild to "fynde vij almus beddes, convenyently clothed, for the ease, refresshyng, and harberyng of pore indigent travayling people commyng unto the saide hospitall."

From this period until the Dissolution, no event of importance in the history of the guild of Corpus Christi is recorded in its Register, or in the municipal archives of the city of York. Before the close of the year 1545, the Act was passed by which the possessions of every college, free-chapel, chantry, hospital, fraternity, brotherhood, and guild in the kingdom were vested in the crown. In the following spring, Robert Holgate, archbishop of York, and other commissioners, acting under royal authority, made a survey and valuation of the property of the guild. We learn from their "Certificat," which is printed in another part of this volume, that the guild possessed lands and tenements in the city and suburbs of York, and in Buttercramb, Holgate, Naburn and Stamford-Bridge, which yielded a net annual income of £11 : 17 : 2; also certain goods, ornaments, plate and jewels,[f] which were valued at the sum of £231 : 3 : 11.

The guild, however, did not fall immediately under the destructive operation of the Act. In the work[g] previously quoted, Mr Davies tells us that "at the return of the festival of Corpus Christi in the first year of Edward VI. (9th June, 1547)), the members once more kept their annual procession, in which the gorgeous shrine, which had been borne so many years in solemn pomp through the streets of the city, was for the last time exhibited to the devout admiration of the people."

Of the great popularity attained by the York guild of Corpus Christi, the Register affords abundant proof. It contains the names of upwards of 16,850 persons[h] who joined the fraternity during its comparatively short existence of not quite a century and a half. Individuals of the highest rank, both ecclesiastical and civil, enrolled themselves as members. Among these were the archbishop of York, the bishops of Carlisle, Durham, Exeter and Hereford, the abbats of York, Fountains, Rievaulx, Selby and Whitby, the priors of Bridlington, Kirkham, Newburgh, Nostell and Watton; Richard, duke of Gloucester, afterwards king of England, his mother Cecily, duchess of York, Francis, viscount Lovel, the lords Clifford, Latimer and Scrope, and Sir Richard Bingham, Sir Thomas Fulthorpe and Sir Ralph Poole, justices of the King's Bench.

Although the guild of Corpus Christi was finally suppressed in 1547 by the Act of Dissolution, the hospital of St. Thomas, to which it was united, succeeded in retaining possession of its estates[i] for nearly thirty years longer, notwithstanding "that presentlie, upon the suppression of the said guilde, one Robert Hog came w^t^ the kinge's commyssion for the seasinge of the said guilde and the landes and tenements belonging to the same into the kinge's handes." How the king's commissioner was set at defiance there is no evidence to shew. In February, 1551-2, William Pinder, clerk, then master of the hospital, after calling his brethren together, declared unto them "the importune suttes, trobles and vexacions that he susteyned for the defence of the right of the said hospitall," and avowed "that he coulde not perceyve that he was able, nor non of his [h] The large number of 592 persons were admitted into the guild in 1473.

[i] In April, 1552, the master, wardens and brethren promised to grant a lease to certain citizens, for 80 years, of all the freehold lands belonging to the hospital, but in the following month they decided, "for certayn reasonable causes," that no such lease should be made.

brether, to upholde and maynteyne the said house and poore folkes onles ther were some remedy hadd." After "consultacion hadd emonges theym," they thought "that if yt wolde pleas my lorde maier and his brether aldermen of the citie of Yorke to be brether with us in the same hospitall, that wolde bee the rediest waie to upholde the said house and maynteyne the poore folkes." This decision was communicated to the lord mayor and the aldermen, who, "consideryng what a meritorious dede it is to be aydyng and assistyng to the sayd hospitall and poore folke, willyngly, with one voyce, granted heraftre to take the sayd bretherhedes apon theym, and to helpe theym in all their lawfull affayeres and nedes." They were accordingly admitted brethren on the 28th of April, and on June the 12th, 1552, Richard White, the lord mayor, was elected master, and aldermen Gale and North wardens, of the hospital for the ensuing year; and during the next quarter of a century the lord mayor for the time being and one of the aldermen, assisted by "a spirituall man," continued to fill the same offices.

The official support thus accorded to the hospital by the municipal authorities appears to have led to an improvement in the state of its finances. An entry in the Register, dated 16th May, 1561, informs us that "the hospitall is come forth of debt," and that a balance of £16 : 12 : 6 was then remaining in the hands of the beadle.

The subsequent history of the hospital may be briefly narrated. In 1575-6, John Marshe and others, citizens of London, obtained a grant from the crown of certain lands and tenements in York, Naburn, Stamford-Bridge and Buttercramb, parcel of the possessions of the late guild of Corpus Christi. The master and brethren appear to have resisted this transfer of their hospital and estates to the London citizens, as in the following year a Special Commission was issued to ascertain, amongst other matters, by what right they continued to hold the lands, etc., which had belonged to the said guild. Certain "Examynacions" were taken at York before Peter Newark, Esq., and other commissioners, the result of which was the confirmation of the grant made by the crown. In February, 1582-3, William Marshe, Esq., and Walter Plummer, of London, merchant-tailor, the representatives of the original grantees, conveyed the house or guild of Corpus Christi, without Micklegate-Bar, together with the lands and tenements belonging to the same in the city and suburbs, and in Naburn, Stamford-Bridge and Buttercramb, to Mr. Hildyard, the recorder, alderman Askwith and Mr. Belt, the town-clerk, as trustees for the mayor and commonalty of the city of York, to be by them "ymployed to the mayntenaunce and relief of the poore." How the corporation fulfilled their trust in later times, it does not fall within my province to describe. Suffice it to state, that the ancient hospital of St. Thomas of Canterbury, after undergoing various alterations and repairs, was finally taken down in 1862, and a more commodious structure erected in the immediate vicinity for the reception of its inmates.

It now only remains for me to offer my cordial thanks to Joseph Wilkinson, Esq., the present courteous town-clerk of York, for the ready access which he has at all times afforded me to the municipal archives, and for permission to engrave the common seals[j] of the guild and hospital; to Professor Stubbs, of Oxford, and James J. Cartwright, Esq., of the Public Record Office, for the transcripts which they most obligingly made for me; and, especially, to Robert Davies, Esq., and the Rev. Canon Raine, for their kind and invaluable assistance in the preparation of this volume.

Etiam iteratur quotidie hoc prætiosum sacramentum deprecationis memoria ut quamadmodum Christus uniret membra cum capite sua passione prætiosa, sic nos erimus uniti fide, spe et caritate, hujus sacramenti recordatione, diei versaria; et non mirum quia hoc sacramentum pietatis est unitatis signum, caritatis vinculum; qui vult vivere accedat et incorporetur per hunc cibum et potum. Hac Augustinus iiij^to^ de Trinitate, et postea in Canone de consecratione distinctione secunda; Hoc sacramentum. Hujus sacramenti susceptionis et recordationis normam firmam Christusmet instituit, quando suos discipulos in cœna ad unitatem convocavit quibus corpus suum prætiosum sacramentaliter tradidit, et illud eis in suæ passionis memoriam reliquit velut post suum exitum ultimatum salutis refugium viaticum, dicens Accipite et comedite; hoc est corpus meum.[h] Quapropter, carissimi, cum nostra fraternitas in veneratione istius prætiosi sacramenti sit regulariter incepta, erimus in fidei ecclesiæ unitate pacifice congregati, velut corporis Christi mystici in precibus, votis et actionibus elemosinariis pars homogenia, cujus fraternitatis unitas et concordia in caritate radicatur, quæ est una in radice, et septiplex in operum miseriarum executione; sicut corpus Christi sub speciebus panis et vini est unum, tamen sub speciebus illis idem corpus repræsentat; septiplex miraculum, sicut patet figurative de unico libro septem sigillis signato. Apoc. v°. Conformiter nostra fraternitas erit unica et una cum istis firmis radicibus et septiplex in executione septrinis (?) consiliis regularibus, cujus confraternitatis unitas Doctorum dictis primo auctorizatur. Deinde in fine sub numero septenerario nostrum regimen demonstrabitur. Quantum ad primum est sciendum quod confraternitatis nostræ unitas est unitas ecclesiæ, quæ, secundum Augustinum, consistit in multorum filiorum per caritatem connectione. Istud patet in Canone xxiiij quæstione prima, loquitur. Loquitur Dominus ad Petrum Ego dico tibi quod tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificabo ecclesiam meam:[i] super unam ecclesiam ædificat, quamvis omnibus Apostolis post resurrectionem Suam parem potestatem tribuat; et hoc fecit ut unitatis originem ab uno incipientem sua auctoritate disponeret. Hanc ecclesiæ unitatem beatus Apostolus ostendit fore corpus Christi mysticum, velut unitatis sacramentum, inquiens per hunc modum. Unum corpus, unus Spiritus, una spes vocationis vestræ, unus Dominus, una fides, unum baptisma;[j] quam unitatem dicit Canon firmiter tenere et vindicare debemus et maxime nos qui in ecclesia præsidemus. Nemo fraternitatem fallat, nemo veritatem Dei perfida prævaricatione corrumpat. Episcopatus unus est cujus singularis solide pars tenetur ecclesia; una est quæ in multitudinem latius incremento fæcunditatis extenditur, quo modo multi radii sunt unum lumen, et rami arboris multi sunt sed robur unum, radice tenaci fundatum. Et quo modo de fonte uno rivi plurimi defluunt sparso ordine, unitas tamen conservatur in origine. Avelle radium solis a corpore, divisionem capit manifeste. Frange ramum ab arbore et fructus non poterit germinare. A fonte præscinde rivum, præscisus arescit; sic et ecclesia Dei luce perfusa per totum orbem radios suos porrigit, unum tamen est quod ubique diffunditur, nec unitas corporis separatur; ramos suos per universum orbem copia ubertatis extendit, profluentes largitur, rivos latius pandit, unum tamen caput est et una origo et una mater fæcunditatis copiosa. Ecce quam plane diversis exemplis Canon expressit nostram unitatem ecclesiasticam fore unam in stipite et multiplicem in membris practica distributione. Hac unitate insuper fraternali omnes confratres erunt membra Christi, de quorum unione est summe gaudendum et peccatis divisionis nimie tristandum. Unde, sicut membrorum naturalium hominis ad caput est naturalis compassio, sic omnium confratrum ad Christum erit reciproca amatio. Unde Augustinus loquitur ad propositum, exponens illud scriptum, Si quid patiatur unum membrum, etc., inquiens per hunc modum, Sicut corpus humanum est unum conjunctione membrorum, sic omnes fideles sunt Christus per ineffabilem unitatem prædestinatorum; et sicut membra naturalia sibi invicem compatiuntur, sic membra spiritualia, Christo capiti unitate fidei conjuncta, super membris infirmis consolatorie miserentur, quia hoc de membris corporis non est ambiguum, quod si oculus vel pes capiatur aliqua ægritudine, totum corpus condolet naturali pietate. Ita et nos decet condolere de fratribus, si quid adversitatis eis emerserit, et summe lætari, si bene eis venerit. Istud confirmatur sacro eloquio Alter alterius onera portate,[k] etc., ad Gal. iiij°. Sed alter alterius onera portare secundum Augustinum est vobismet ipsis in orationibus et jejuniis caritative subvenire, et sic adimplebitis legem Christi, id est fraternam caritatem. Et est fraterna caritas, secundum Rabanum super Mathæum, quæ fratrem veneratur devotum, corripit dissolutum, applaudit infirmum, non deserit placatum, nec provocat iratum. Unde Gregorius xxviij° Morum de septem regulis caritatis nostram confraternitatem dirigentibus et sic scribit ad propositum. Prima regula est quod caritas patiens est, quia illata mala æquanimiter tolerat. Secunda caritas benigna est, quia pro malis bona largiter ministrat. Tertia non æmulatur, quia per hoc quod in præsenti mundo nil appetit invidere terrenis successibus nescit. Quarta non inflatur, quia cum præmium æternæ retributionis anxie desiderat, de bonis se exterioribus non exaltat. Quinta non cogitat malum, quia in amore munditie mentem solidans, dum omne odium radicitus eruit, versare in animo quod inquinat nescit. Sexta non gaudet iniquitate similiter quia quæ sola dilectione erga omnes inhiat nec de perditione adversantium exultat. Septima congaudet autem veritati, quia per se cæteros diligens per hoc quod rectum in aliis conspicit quasi de augmento proprii proventus hillarescit. Super hac caritate per-fecta fundatur nostra confraternitas congregata septipliciter, sic divisa in bono regimine, sed unica in firma radice, in qua omnia virescunt et sine qua linguarum sapientia divitiarum copia et morum (?) audacia vilescunt; per quam omnia vivificantur, et sine qua universa mortificantur: et non mirum, cum scriptum sit in sacro elogio Deus caritas est; et qui manet in caritate in Deo manet et Deus in eo. Prima Joh. iiij°.

Quantum ad secundam, videlicet, ut nostram fraternalem caritatem debite observemus septem regularia consilia, secundum ordinem præmissorum, ut prædicitur, custodienda, perlegere sub hac forma decrevimus.

Prima Constitutio.

Ordinamus quod in festo Corporis Christi omnes capellani in superpelliciis transeant in processione modo honesto processionaliter, antiquitatis ordine, nisi rationabiliter possint excusari. [Et ut cultus Dei venerabilius augeatur, ut sacerdotium dignius habeatur, ac per hæc populus convenientius ad devotionem excitetur, ordinamus quod sex magistri, vel eorum duo ad minus, pro temporibus suis, ad cæterorum distinctionem, in omni processione generali virgulas portabunt dealbatas, qui alios in hujusmodi processionibus regere habent, considerando ut tantus sit, solidus et devotus incessus, debitus, ordinatus et maturus, ad laudem Dei, honestatem sacerdotii, ædificationem ac bonum exemplum totius populi Christiani; maxime autem ad honorem Dei et civitatis Ebor.'][1].

Secunda Constitutio.

Ordinamus quod sex capellani de fraternitate prædicta annuatim Dominico infra Octavas Corporis Christi pro confraternitatis commodo eligantur; ut confratrum merita per opera virtuosa multiplicentur; et quod si electi et nominati custodes non refutent nec se absentent ab electione prædicta, sub pœna quadraginta denariorum in transgressores multanda et dictæ fraternitati solvenda. Qui quidem sex capellani electi habeant gubernationem totius confraternitatis nostræ, ad disponendum omnia et singula quæ dictæ confraternitati sunt necessaria et honesta, prout eidem melius viderint expedire, cujuscunque calumniatorum reclamatione, utilitate communi seu ratione carente, in hoc non obstante.

Tertia Constitutio.

Ordinamus quod intrare volentes nostram fraternitatem per

[1] The portion within brackets is written upon an erasure.

sex magistros recipiantur, et ad nostras Constitutiones non sint astricti quovismodo facti juramento, sed sponte eligant confraternitatem, sine aliquo pacto ligati, caritatis vinculo; onerantes tamen conscientias eorundem sic intrare volentium, ut, secundum statum et honestatem suam, taliter satisfaciant fraternitati in introitu suo, quod onera laudabilia dictæ fraternitatis emergentia per ipsos taliter intrantes melius supportentur et venerabilius gubernentur.

(Quarta Constitutio).

Ordinamus quod omnes confratres capellani in missis suis generaliter pro se ipsis et universis fratribus et sororibus nostræ fraternitatis, vivis et defunctis, orent quotidie, devote; et post mortem eorundem in eorum exequiis et missis, ad limitationem custodum fraternitatis, personaliter intersint; ipsas concelebrantes, et in eisdem taliter se in omnibus gubernantes quod honor sacerdotalis et amor fraternalis debite et laudabiliter conserventur; et sic a loco a quo aliquod corpus nostræ fraternitatis defunctum ad suam ecclesiam defertur, ante ipsum processionaliter gradientes, si non contingat aliqua rationabilis causa assignari, omnimoda excusatione vana et ficta a processione defunctorum pro honestate fraternitatis nostræ servanda penitus amota et sequestrata. Nolumus etiam in ipsorum exequiis et missis quam citius ad fratrum nostrorum notitiam pervenerit, præfatis animabus Collecta speciali suffragari. Et si extra civitatem decedant, et aliquod legatum gratiose in testamentis suis nostræ fraternitati legaverint vel donaverint, missam habeant specialem solemniter cum nota a confratribus præmunitis in aliquo loco congruo a magistris assignato.

Quinta (Constitutio).

Ordinamus quod sæculares de confraternitate nostra in iiij^{or} [obitibus pro defunctis nostris annuatim faciendis et per le Belman proclamandis, Psalterium beatæ Mariæ Virginis offerant in libamen animarum, ut citius evolent ad gaudia beatorum, et intercessionibus multiplicatis habeamus gaudia cælorum].[1] Qui tamen sæculares, quamvis ad preces et ad fraternitatem recipiantur, ad nostra consilia nec ad gubernationem fraternitatis non admittantur. Et quod nulli sæculares ad nostram fraternitatem admittantur nisi tantummodo honestæ personæ, et honesti artificii; et quod bonæ conversationis et famæ existant omnes recipiendi, tam clerici quam sæculares, utriusque sexus.

(Sexta Constitutio).

Ordinamus quod quilibet confrater capellanus præmunitus

adesse nostro trino consilio vel quaterno, si opus fuerit, pro qualibet vice solvat denarium. Et in Dominica infra Octavas Corporis Christi omnes confratres et sorores nostri adsint missæ et solatio generali, duos denarios duntaxat solventes pro fraternali solatio. Et quod tam capellani quam sæculares, legitime præmuniti a sex magistris, qui prædictis nostris congregationibus absentes fuerint, solvant sicut qui ibidem præsentes extiterint, nisi quando præmuniti fuerint rationabilem magistris assignaverint causam quod illis congregationibus adesse non poterint. Alioquin denegantes solvere, ut prædictum est, aliqua vice nostræ congregationis post trinam monitionem convicti, amoveantur a fraternitate, nec ultra recipiantur ad eandem, nisi prius satisfaciant competenter nostræ fraternitati. Volumus etiam et ordinamus quod in dicta Dominica, post vesperas diei, fiat unus obitus generalis solemniter cum nota pro omnibus fratribus et sororibus nostræ fraternitatis defunctis; et die Lunæ sequente missa pro eisdem solemniter celebrata secundum ordinationem dictorum sex magistrorum. [Sic proviso quod iiij^{or} obitus fiant omni anno cum xx^{ti} capellanis, proprius magistris dictæ fraternitatis, dando cuilibet eorum pro suo labore ijd., et campanario civitatis iijd., et clerico capellæ iijd., pro officio suo ibidem ministrato et habito.]^{l} Volumus etiam quod in tempore cujuslibet obitus per unum de dictis magistris fiat una missa de Corpore Christi; et quod duæ cereæ, ponderantes ij libras ad minus, tam in dictis obitibus quam festis duplicibus ardeant et luceant; et earum altera tantum in festis ix lectionum annuatim, videlicet, in obsequiis divinis ad honorem Dei, beatæ Mariæ Virginis et Omnium Sanctorum et totius fraternitatis meritum, tam animarum quam corporum.

(Septima Constitutio).

Ordinamus quod in processione Corporis Christi decem luminaria magna deferantur coram sacramento, et sex solummodo processionaliter coram corpore confratris defuncto. Et quod quilibet confrater et soror solvat quolibet anno, proximo quarterio ante festum Corporis Christi, ad minus, duos denarios ad dictorum luminarium sustentationem. Et quod omnia data, legata et concessa dictæ fraternitati sint in dictorum magistrorum fideli custodia cum communi confratrum consilio in pios usus nostræ fraternitatis convertenda. Inhibemus etiam quod in nostris congregationibus fiat aliqualis accessus puerorum, seu famulorum extraneorum, ne forte elemosina pauperibus eroganda per eosdem devastetur. Ordinamus etiam quod sex magistri suis successoribus, aliis scilicet sex magistris eis proximo succedentibus, in omnibus, quantum in ipsis est, favorabiles existant et benevoli, eis præbendo consilium et auxilium, dummodo et quotiens requiruntur per eosdem in omnibus quæ ad nostræ fraternitatis commodum spectant et utilitatem. Et, in speciali, quod sint parati diebus et horis, quando debite vocantur, pro collectione subsidii annualis cum eis circuiendo et informando de mansionibus, domibus et locis confratrum et consororum infra limites civitatis Ebor. Cui vel quibus eo die quo sic cum eis transierint tribuantur pro labore ijd. vel annona (scilicet prandium—interlined) eo quod dignus est operarius mercede sua,[m] vel cibo suo. Insuper volumus et ordinamus quod sex magistri pro temporibus suis annuatim ante festum Sancti Michaelis Archangeli, ad majus, in præsentia sex prædecessorum suorum ac aliorum sex vel octo sacerdotum, et non plurium, qui in officiis hujus fraternitatis prius fuerunt magistri, et pro utilitate fraternitatis primitus laboraverunt et in bonis ejusdem notitiam singularem inspexerunt, cæteris sex magistris immediate eis succedentibus fidelem reddant compotum, ac eisdem sine dilatione longiori seu colore quocunque deliberent, seu deliberari faciant omnia bona huic fraternitati quovismodo pertinentia, penitus, prudenter et discrete; omnes vanas et inutiles expensas, solutionesque excessivas evitantes, quæ in detrimentum aut damnum cedere possent hujus fraternitatis vel læsuram in aliquo suis inferrent conscientiis.

Ex quibus quidem capellanis electi fuerunt sex custodes, qui magistri appellantur, ad gubernandum dictam fraternitatem ad Dei laudem, viz., dominus Rogerus Bubwyth, dom. [n] The Guild must have been founded before the 12th of October, 1408, on which day probate was granted of the will of William Salley of York, whose name heads the list of those brethren and sisters of the Guild who died during the first year of its foundation. This list, which extends over a period of nearly thirty years, will be printed at a subsequent page. It is hereinafter referred to as the Obituary.

[o] It is remarkable that the Register does not contain any special record of the names of the founders and original members of the Guild. That these were considerable in number, and comprised some of the most eminent of the citizens of York, is, I think, clearly evinced by the earlier entries in the Obituary. During the first decade of the Guild's existence, the deaths are recorded of upwards of one hundred persons whose names do not appear in the list of admissions.

[p] William de Wyntryngham was instituted to Settrington's chantry in the church of St. Peter the Little, York, 14th July, 1407 (Reg. Ebor. Sede Vac., 85).

[q] This statement does not agree with the Obituary, where the death of Oliva Cotyngham is recorded in the second year (1409-10) of the Guild's foundation.

[r] William Ottelay, chaplain, was appointed master of Trinity Hospital, Fossgate, 3rd May, 1394, and held that office in 1429.

Magister Johannes Carleton.[m]
Dom. Thomas Rouston, rector.

[h] Probably Joan, wife of Sir William Gascoigne of Gawthorpe, and daughter and heiress of Henry Wyman, alderman of York. See the Obituary, postea.

[i] Richard Middilham was employed on the fabric of the Minster about 1400. He occurs in the Obituary for the years 1434-5.

[j] Thomas de Spofforth succeeded Thomas Pygott as abbat of St. Mary's in 1405, his election being confirmed on June 10th in that year. In 1414 he was one of the ambassadors sent by Henry V. to the Council of Constance. In 1422 he was appointed to the bishopric of Hereford, which see he held until 1448, when he resigned and retired to York, taking up his abode within the walls of the monastery over which he had formerly presided. Here, after the lapse of a few years, he died and was buried; administration of his effects being granted to John Shalford, one of the monks, on 5th Aug., 1456.

To the Corpus Christi Guild bishop Spofforth was a munificent benefactor. Shortly after his admission he gave to it "unum magnum luminare cum toto apparatu;" in 1449, after his return to York, he presented the fraternity with a magnificent shrine of silver gilt, valued at £256, which doubtless formed the most prominent and attractive feature in the annual processions; and to this noble gift he subsequently added, as stated in the Register, "alia jocalia, in numero non pauca." A minute description of this shrine, and of the jewels and ornaments belonging to the Guild, is given in another part of this volume.

[k] William Dalton succeeded Spofforth as abbat in December, 1422, but he only enjoyed that dignity for a few months. His name appears in the Obituary of the Guild for the year 1422-3.

[l] William Pelleson, canon residentiary of York. In June, 1408, he occurs as rector of Anderby, co. Linc. (Reg. archiep. Bowet, pars ii., 8), which living he exchanged, 22nd May, 1417, with Mr. Marmaduke Lumley, for the deanery of Lanchester, co. Durham (Test. Ebor., iv., 2). On 10th July, 1414, he was collated to the archdeaconry of Cleveland (Reg. Bowet, 52 b), which he held until his death. Will dated at Copmanthorpe, 24th Aug., 1434 [Pro. 4th Sept. seq.], to be buried in the nave of the Minster, at the head or feet of Mr. Wm. Ferriby (Fabric Rolls, ed. Surt. Soc., 51 n). [u] Mr. Roger Eston, rector of Richmond, son and heir of John de Eston, or Eshton, merchant, York (Reg. Test., iii., 605), bailiff in 1367-8, and M.P. in 1376. In his will, dated 20th July, 1446 [Pro. 3rd Aug. seq.], he desires to be buried near his parents in the church of St. Saviour, York, and bequeaths 3s. 4d. "feretro fabricato pro corpore Christi in Ebor." (Reg. Test., ii., 132 b). In the second volume of York Wills (ed. Surt. Soc., p. 114 n), Roger de Eston is stated to have been presented to the rectory of Richmond in 1443, and to have had but a short tenure of his living. This, however, is incorrect, for I find that on 2nd March, 1408-9, "Magister Rogerus Eston, rector eccl. par. de Richemond.," was ordained priest at the Friars Preachers, York, "ad titulum ecclesiæ suæ" (Reg. archiep. Bowet). His mother Emma, in her will, dated 25th April, 1416, bequeaths all her lands, etc., in York, "Magistro Rogero Eston, filio meo, rectori ecclesiæ parochiali B. Mariæ Richmundiæ (Reg. Test., iii., 605), and he was rector at the time of his death, which occurred at York in 1446. The name of "Emmota Eston" occurs in the Obituary of the Guild for the year 1417-8.

[v] A wealthy merchant and alderman of York, who, as "Nicholaus de Blakburn de Richemond, senior," was admitted to his freedom in 1396. In 1405-6 he was "admirallus flotæ navium regis ab ore Thamesis versus partes boriales" (Cal. Rot. Pat., 251). He filled the office of lord mayor in 1412, died in 1432, and was buried in the Minster. For a further account of him, and his munificent benefactions, see Test. Ebor., ii., 17. This Nicholas Blackburn was not "twys Mair of Yorke," as stated by Leland, and others after him. It was his son, "Nicholas Blackburn, junior," who filled that office in 1429 (York Corporation Records). He, and a third Nich. Blackburn, who was sheriff in 1437-8, will be mentioned afterwards.

[w] Richard Spenser, litster, free in 1397, chamberlain in 1410, and sheriff in 1414-5. His name occurs in the Obituary for the year 1418-9.

[x] William Ormeshed, merchant, free in 1404, chamberlain in 1411, sheriff in 1414-5, lord mayor in 1425 and 1433, and M.P. in 1421, 1425, and 1430. He died 22nd September, 1437, and was buried in Christ church, where was formerly an inscription commemorating him and his three wives, Agnes, Joan, and Ellen.

[y] William del Lee, bower, sheriff in 1401-2, died in 1418-9. See the Obituary, postea.

celebrated. As "Willelmus Revetour, clericus, filius Rogeri Morbet, revetour," he was admitted to his freedom in 1420. On 17th May, 1421, he was ordained acolite (Reg. archiep. Bowet). In July, 1424, he occurs as "sub-clericus cameræ," or, as we should now call him, deputy town-clerk (Corporation Records, B. y., 40). An office probably more to his taste would be that of keeper of the Corpus Christi Guild, to which he was elected in 1440, and we may well suppose that, under his supervision, the annual pageant of the guild would lose none of its brilliancy and attraction. Revetour died in 1446, leaving a will of the "deepest interest and value" (Test. Ebor., ii., 116), from which I append a few extracts. "Sep. in ecclesia parochiali S. Johannis Evang.—Lego cuilibet capellano eccl. S. Trinitatis in Curia Regis, ad specialiter orandum pro animabus parentum meorum, viz., Rogeri Revetour et Johannæ uxoris ejus, ac anima mea ac animabus omnium fidelium defunctorum, vjd.—Lego fabricæ feretri Corporis Christi Ebor. j goblett argenti.—Lego fraternitati Corporis Christi in Ebor. quemdam librum vocatum Le Crede Play, cum libris et vexillis eidem pertinentibus." Although not so stated in the will itself, this last-mentioned bequest was coupled with the following condition, "Ut quolibet anno decimo futuro, in variis locis dictæ civitatis Eboraci, congruis audientibus ob salutem spiritualem ludus iste incomparabilis publicè promulgetur" (Extracts from York Records, by R. Davies, esq., p. 257).

In his will, dated 18th December, 1522 [Pro. 9th April, seq.], he desires to be buried in the cathedral, near his late master, John Ranolds (Reg. Test., ix., 204). Alderman Cure was twice married. The parentage of his first wife Alice has not been ascertained. His second wife, whom he married in 1521, was Beatrice Evers, of York. She survived him. Having fallen into poverty, he resigned his gown in September, 1548, and the Council granted him an annuity of four marks. At a meeting of the Corporation in April, 1554, it was agreed, "at the humble suit of the Lady Hogeshon,—that in consideracion her husband hathe borne office and charges in this city, 10s. shall be given to her this time, and no more hereafter." On 14th December, 1563, however, "in consideracion of her impotent age," Lady Hogeson received out of the Chamber a further sum of 10s. [i] James Harrington, merchant, son of William Harrington, alderman of York (see p. 168, antea). Free in 1533, chamberlain in 1541, sheriff in 1549-50, and governor of the Merchants' Company from 1552 to 1554. On 24th August, 1558, he was elected an alderman, vice John North, deceased, but he refused to be sworn. On the 19th of September following, "at commandement of my lord mayour," he appeared before the city council, "and albeit he was gently exhorted and requyred, as well by my sayd lord mayour as other his brederne, alldremen, etc., to take his othe of aldreman accustomed, yet neyther by fayre meanes, ne otherwise, wold he take his othe, but very obstinately refused soo to doo. And for soomoch he thus contynewed still in his sayd wilfullnes, and wold in no wise be persuaded," it was therefore unanimously agreed "that the same Mr. Haryngton, for his said obstynacy and disobedyens, to the perillouse example of others, shalbe commytted forthwith to warde unto suche tyme he wilbe justified, accordyng to his franchised oathe." The council, however, "perceyvyng that the sayd Mr. Haryngton by long sykenesse was weake and feble, considered that the mayour's kid-cot, where unto franchised men are used to be commytted for their offens, was to rawe and cold an hows for hym. Therfor, for the bettar preservacion of his health, they were nowe content and aggreed that he shold be commytted to the shirefes of this citie, to be by theym kept in warde in John Ledale's hows, or some other honest hows on the brigge, and there to be taken hede to and kept as prisoner, withowte great duresse, by some of their officers" (Corp. Min., xxii., 133 b). At a meeting of the Council on the 14th October, it was agreed that a letter should "be sent up to Mr. Recordar, desiring him to declare the playn trueth to Mr. Wray concernyng his broder-in-lawe Mr. Haryngton's wilfullnes." Mr. Harrington, who was then present, being "gently desyred and requyred, as well by my lord mayour as all others, to take his oathe of alderman, did obstinatly refuse that to doo," and was therefore "commytted to warde, from wheus he came, upon Ouse-brige" (Ibid., 136 b). A fortnight afterwards, aldermen Bean, Watson, and Goldthorpe went to Mr. Harrington's house, he being sick, and not able to attend at the Common Hall "withoute perill, and hurtfull to his boddy,—and before them he tuyke his othe of aldermanship accustomyd" (Ibid., 138 b). Alderman Harrington occupied the civic chair in 1560, and died in January, 1562-3, leaving a widow Cecilia, the daughter of Thomas Wray, esq., of St. Nicholas, near Richmond.

[j] John Dakyn, LL.D., afterwards vicar-general and official principal to the archbishop of York, prebendary of Bilton and Fenton, and archdeacon of the East Riding, died in 1558.

[l] Probably Robert Fournes, to whom, on 8th January, 1517-8, the corporation, at the special request of his master, cardinal Wolsey, archbishop of York, granted "the office of sword-beryng, or sword-berer, affore the maier." This appointment of a stranger to a municipal office does not appear to have been satisfactory to the citizens at large. Shortly afterwards, Fournes had to complain that upon St. Blaise's Day (February 3), when he was discharging his duty at the election of mayor in the common hall, one Richard Hessilwode addressed him thus:—"Maister Fournes, what doo ye here? There is not oon in this hall that herafter will company with you, or anything will doo for you. There is not one in this cittie that luffeth my lord cardinall or you, or any other that longeth to my lord cardinall." It is not known how long Fournes remained in the service of the corporation, but his successor, Henry Fawkes, was in possession of the office in 1522 (The Fawkes's of York, by Rob. Davies, F.S.A.).

Helen, the first wife of alderman Graves, and the mother, apparently, of his children, was buried at All Saints, Pavement, 20th April, 1561. Elizabeth, his second wife, survived him. His elder brother, John Graves, of Beamsley, co. York, settled in London, where he died in 1616, aged 103. He was ancestor of the family of Graves, of Mickleton, co. Gloucester. There is a portrait of him, taken when he was upwards of 100 years old, in Nash's History of Worcestershire.

SECUNDO ANNO [1409-1410].

Magister Joh. Scheford.[g]

[b] Lansd. MS., cccciii., fo. 28. See pp. 10, 29, antea.

[c] William de Salley, son of Robert (son of William) de Salley and Maud his wife, was sheriff of York in 1397-8. In 1401 he occurs as the founder, or patron, of a Maison Dieu in North-street. His will, which is imperfect, was proved 12th October, 1408. He bequeaths to his wife Margaret "tres placeas terræ ædificatas super cornerium de Nune-lane in Clementhorp, prope aquam Usæ, simul cum quatuor domibus rentalibus in dicta venella eisdem placeis annexis,—cum toto illo tenemento meo et sex domibus super cornerium de Gregore-layne et North-strete, ex opposito ecclesiæ Fratrum Prædicatorum, Ebor.; ac etiam illud tenementum in North-strete, in parochia S. Johannis, in fronte versus regiam stratam, cum sex domibus in venella ibidem juxta le Meson Dieu, ex parte australi ejusdem venellæ" (Reg. Test., iii., 603). The testator left a son and heir, Robert Salley, esq., of Saxton. See p. 11, antea.

[d] Richard de Alne, tanner, free in 1351, chamberlain in 1365, and bailiff of York in 1379-80, died in 1409. Will dated 30th May, 1408 [Pro. 11th May, 1409]. "Sep. in ecclesia mea parochiali Omnium Sanctorum in North-strete, Ebor., infra chorum Sancti Nicholai." He bequeaths to his eldest son, Mr. Robert de Alne, "j doser stenyd de historia Guidonis de Warwyk" (Corp. Records, B. y. 33 b). William de Alne, merchant, the testator's younger son, was chamberlain in 1394, and bailiff in 1395-6. When king Richard II., by his charter, dated 18th May, 1396, made the city a county by itself, and appointed two sheriffs instead of three bailiffs, William de Alne was one of the persons elected to that office, his colleague being Thomas de Ruston. In 1413 and 1415 he represented the city in parliament, and was chief magistrate in the last-mentioned year.

[e] 2nd August, 1408. Willelmus Ludesham, presbiter, Ebor.—Sep. in ecclesia parochiali S. Crucis, Ebor.—Item lego fraternitati S. Mariæ ordinatæ infra ecclesiam S. Egidii juxta muros Ebor., portiforium meum, ita quod solvant Johannæ matri meæ qualibet septimana, ad terminum vitæ suæ, iiijd., sin autem, volo quod prædictum portiforium vendatur et disponatur in auxilium et usum prædictæ matris meæ [Pro. 4th August, 1408] (Reg. Test., ii., 579). This will, which I had not seen when the note on p. 10 was written, and the date of death of Mr. John Shelford, who is mentioned below, prove that the Guild was founded at least as early as July, 1408.

[f] Robert de Louth, junior, merchant, was admitted to his freedom in 1385. His father, Robert de Louth, de Ormesby, mercer, free in 1368, was bailiff of York in 1388-9, and died in 1407, leaving a widow Joan. See p. 17, antea.

[g] Mr. John Shelford, an examiner of the Court of York, died 12th July, 1409, and was buried in the Minster.

✠ Recharde arche beschope Scrope grantes on to all tho that drinkis of this cope xl dayes to pardūn Robert Gubsūn Beschope Musin grantes in same forme afore saide xl dayes to pardūn Robert Strensall ✠

[c] This cup or bowl, which is usually called archbishop Scrope's Indulgence Cup, is now preserved in the vestry of York Minster. It formerly belonged to the Company of Cordwainers of York, which was dissolved in the early part of the present century, when the bowl passed into the hands of the late William Hornby, esq., the last governor of the Company, by whom it was placed in the custody of the Dean and Chapter. Of Agnes Wyman, the donor, I have already given some account at page 239, antea. An elaborate and well illustrated paper on the cup itself, by Robert Davies, esq., F.S.A., is published in the Proceedings of the Archæological Institute for 1846; and the same gentleman afterwards contributed a note on "Archbishop Scrope's Mazer," to Messrs. Poole and Hugall's Historical and Descriptive Guide to York Cathedral and its Antiquities. Through the courtesy of the Council of the Archæological Institute, I am enabled to reproduce the illustrations. The following amended reading of the inscription on the rim of the bowl is derived from the last-mentioned work (p. 197):—"✠Recharde arche beschope Scrope grantes on to all tho that drinkis of this cope xl^{ti} dayis to pardūn. Robert Gubsūn. Beschope Musin grantes in same forme afore saide xl^{ti} dayis to pardūn. Robert Strensall." Mr. Davies remarks that "it is difficult to account for the introduction of the names of Robert Gubsune and Robert Strensalle into the second part of the legend," and supposes that "they were office-bearers of the Corpus Christi guild at the time of the presentation of the cup." Their names, however, do not appear in the Register now printed; and I regret my inability to remove the difficulty. "Beschope Musin"

For dyvers and sundry consideracions, the said maister, upon the last daie of Februarie, in the yere of our Lorde God a thowsande fyve hundreth fyftie and one, did call his brether together in the said hospitall, and declared unto his said brether the importune suttes, trobles and vexacions that he susteyned for the defence of the right of the said hospitall, wherapon that he coulde not perceyve that he was able, nor non of his brether, to upholde and maynteyne the said house and poore folkes onles ther were some remedy hadd. [k] The hospital of St. Thomas, which stood at the corner of Blossom-street and Nunnery-lane, was removed in 1862, in order to improve the entrance to the last-mentioned street, and a more commodious building was erected on the west side of the approach to Victoria Bar. For a description of the old hospital, I refer my readers to the Histories of York by Drake and Hargrove.

lorde maier and his brether aldermen of the citie of Yorke to vowchesafe of ther favor and goodnes for to be brether with us in the same hospitall, and that wolde bee the rediest waie to upholde the said house and maynteyne the poore folkes, and bycause that they be men of worshipp and good conscience, and of good habilitie. And so therupon yt was agreed emonges theym that immediatly the said master and wardens shuld goo and declare the matter afforesaid unto my lorde mayer, and for to desier my said lorde maier and his brether, by the waie of charitie and supplicacion, to be good and beneficyall unto the poore hospitall aforesaid, and especyall unto the poore folkes of the same hospitall; and that if yt wolde pleas theym to accept this our pore request, that ys to saie, to be brether with us for the upholding and maynteyning of the said hospitall, and for w^t^out your good helping handes we ar not able to helpe theym of our goodes. And the said lord maier did send worde unto the master, and desired hym and his said brether to be afore hym upon Usebrige upon the xxviij^th^ daie of Aprill, in the yere of our Lorde God a thowsande fyve hundreth fyfty and tow, and ther we shulde have a honest aunswere. THE SURTEES SOCIETY.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR MD.CCC.LXX.

The Council of the Surtees Society have to deplore this year the death of two associates, who have been connected with the Society from its establishment in 1834, Sir Charles Young, and Mr. Hodgson Hinde. Both have taken at all times the deepest interest in its welfare. Sir Charles Young was an intimate friend of Mr. Surtees, and through him the northern antiquaries obtained access to the treasures of the Herald's College at a time when that repository of genealogical lore was almost entirely closed to historical enquirers. Sir C. Young was at that time York Herald, and then, as well as subsequently, when he was advanced to regal honours in that ancient and illustrious brotherhood, his assistance was always given to every earnest investigator with a courtesy which was equal to his generosity. In Mr. Hodgson Hinde the north of England has lost an historical antiquary whom it will be difficult to replace. Born in the district, educated under Dr. Raine at Durham Grammar School, for many years he devoted a large portion of his time to the history of Northumberland. Although he was unable to decypher a manuscript, no one could give a more sound or discriminating opinion on the text when it was submitted to him; he had an admirable gift of weighing evidence, a clear insight into the general and particular bearings of history, and he spared neither pains nor cost in gathering materials together for the elucidation of our northern annals. It is to his pen and purse that we are indebted for an additional volume of Hodgson's History of Northumberland, and, at the time of his lamented decease, he was associated with the Secretary of the Society in the preparation of Symeon's History of the Church of Durham. The preface and the greater part of the notes to the first volume of the works of that northern historian attest Mr. Hodgson Hinde's critical research, and his minute and intimate acquaintance with everything connected with the history of the north of England.

Among the works which may soon be expected to be in the hands of the members of the Society the following may be mentioned. 1.—The second volume of the Memorials of Fountains Abbey, five sheets of which had been finished by Mr. Walbran at the time of his lamented decease. This volume will contain the Royal Charters of privilege and the Papal Bulls, which throw much light upon the history of the Cistercian Order. 2.—The Manual and Pontifical after the York use, with various illustrative documents, which are being prepared by Dr. Henderson, of Leeds. 3.—The Survey of the Estate of the Prior and Convent of Durham, by Thomas de Melsonby, in the 13th century, illustrated by numerous deeds from the Treasury of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, which show how the Prior and Convent became possessed of their property. 4.—The Register of the Guild of the Corpus Christi at York, with the Rules, Inventories of property, and lists of members from its foundation to its dissolution. 5.—The second volume of the Letters, etc., of Bishop Cosin.
